Iznik: (Nicaea) is a little town set beside a picturesque lake, historically famous for hosting the First Ecumenical Council of the church that was summoned by Emperor Constantine the Great in 325 AD. Historically Iznik city was built on an important crossroads between Galatia and Phrigia. It was the birthplace of the astronomer Hipparchus the mathematician and astronomer Sporus and the historian Dio Cassius. In 1331, the city was conquered and incorporated into the Ottoman Empire by Orhan I. The city lies in a fertile basin at the eastern end of the Lake Iznik bounded by ranges of hills to the north and south. During the Ottoman period, this city became famous for its tile production. So famous that most of the mosques were decorated with Iznik tiles. Our tour includes visit to Istanbul Gate, Roman-Byzantine Walls, The Green Mosque, Archeological Museum, Hagia Sophia, Suleiman Pasha Medrese, Roman Theater, shores of Lake Iznik and others...
